Old Hubbard records were transferred for safety to the MN Historical Society 40 years ago. In 1992 I was the last member of the public to hold the original books. After I requested them a half dozen times, they were deemed to be in sufficient demand to require microfilming, and destruction of the original books to save space in the archive boxes. I regret that called them up, although naturalization records, at least, have now been microfilmed, transcribed and put online. Other old volumes recorded such things as the bounty payments for gopher & wolf ears, if I remember correctly. They might be of use to naturalists to estimate the populations of vermin during the years covered.
